

hundred fireworks for the Fox Film Corporation, who also made a state visit to the authorities. He said he had called on Kline Friday evening on business, and according to Police Capt. Dinan of Edgewater corroborated Miss Thornton's story.

After the shot, Kline said, and after Kline came out into the yard, Kline came to him and his brother, who had driven his automobile to Edgewater, and said: "You go on home now; I'll talk with you about the contract another time."

The intimation that Kline was in those hands was in the home at the time of the shooting comes from Prosecutor Hart.

It was finally established yesterday that Kline's real name is George "Chubby" Wals. Mr. Hart admitted Kline told him so, and from Camden, N. J., where he was born in 1889, came verification. There it was said his mother, now Mrs. James White, wife of a Captain in the Fire Department, still lives, as do his brother Conrad and sister Mildred. His father, Conrad Wals, conducted a butcher store in Camden.

The Camden police records show Wals (Kline) was arrested in 1909 charged with the larceny of three diamond rings from a store window and also was charged with carrying a concealed weapon. The larceny charge was withdrawn when the rings were returned, but he was convicted on the other charge. Sentence was suspended.

Prosecutor Hart, Assistant Prosecutor McCarthy, Capt. Dinan and Detective Allyn visited the Kline home yesterday afternoon. A photographer, took pictures of blood stains and of the interior of the house. They found, they said, the room in which Kline claimed the struggle and shooting occurred no small that, furnished as it was there was not ten feet of space for a duel.

Up to today Bergen's reported marriage to the woman who now claims to be Mrs. May Bergin, daughter of Hugh Gribben, retired policeman, has not been established. The records in the Marriage Bureau here include no such wedding. The Bergen family, said John was never married, but Mrs. Bergin identified his body as that of the man who married her in 1916 and deserted her a year later before the birth of her daughter Margaret.

From the Fox Film Corporation came this note last night:

"From newspaper reports of the shooting it would appear the persons involved were employed in important positions by this corporation. The facts are Kline was not a director but a minor employee. His job was in charge of the location where scenes could be photographed. Bergen was not regularly employed, but was hired by the day as an extra."

Bergen will be buried today with a requiem mass at 10 A. M., from the Church of the Queen of Angels in East 14th Street, near Second Avenue.

HARDING POLICY IN COAL STRIKE IS "WAIT AND HOPE"

Government Seen as Innocent Onlooker in Fight to Finish.

NO ACTION PLANNED.

Situation Must Be Worse Before It Can Be Made Better, Is View.

By David Lawrence.

(Special Correspondent of The Evening World.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (Copy right).—Hope springs eternal in the coal-mining industry, and just now that hope is Adamantine policy, namely, that the industrial situation will somehow right itself yet without drastic action, legislative or otherwise.

No definite alternative has been decided upon. Talk is of a series of mince and radium strikes still taking place, but the industry is waiting for a few days and then when the situation is worse, it will be forced to take the initiative.

In a nutshell, the whole Government attitude is one of waiting. Every day brings some new reason for waiting. Today it is the hope, in fact the optimism, that the anthracite strike will be settled within a few days and that when the people are assured of hard coal one source of apprehension will be removed. Until that hope is absolutely gone, there will be nothing done about the anthracite problem.

As for the coal situation, the Government feels that enough has been done as a result of the Cleveland treaty of peace to make Government interference unnecessary, provided the coal can be transported. There the railroad shippers' strike enters the picture. There is a possibility that the railroad shippers' strike will be settled within a few days and that when the people are assured of hard coal one source of apprehension will be removed. Until that hope is absolutely gone, there will be nothing done about the anthracite problem.

From the Fox Film Corporation came this note last night:

"From newspaper reports of the shooting it would appear the persons involved were employed in important positions by this corporation. The facts are Kline was not a director but a minor employee. His job was in charge of the location where scenes could be photographed. Bergen was not regularly employed, but was hired by the day as an extra."

Bergen will be buried today with a requiem mass at 10 A. M., from the Church of the Queen of Angels in East 14th Street, near Second Avenue.

INVESTIGATE DEATH OF HERBERT DENT

Lawyer Asks Mr. Benton to Have Case of Negro Boy Cleared.

A thorough investigation into the death of Herbert Dent, eighteen, a Negro laborer of No. 129 Lenox Avenue, slain in the West 12th Street station on June 27 when he was shot by a police officer, was demanded today by Herman Hoffman, a lawyer with office in the Woolworth Building. In a letter to District Attorney Benton.

He offers to cooperate in "bringing to light and speedy justice the actual solution of what appears to have been a most disastrous, premature attack upon a colored lad which brought about his untimely death." The letter continues: "I think you will agree with me that if a murder has been committed it is a public scandal and a travesty upon justice that the guilty ones have not yet been apprehended."

WANT BOAT CLUB DECLARED NUISANCE

Interferes With Crippled Children's Health, Is Charge.

An effort to have the Central Boat Club at Park Rockway declared a nuisance for alleged trespass on the adjoining property of the Home for Crippled Children will be thrust out by District Magistrate Miller in the Third District Magistrate's Court at Park Rockway this afternoon. Mrs. Emily Goldsmith, President of the Home for Crippled Children, the complainant, will be represented by Benjamin F. Burkett of No. 135 Broadway.

It is alleged that the location of the boat club members on the adjoining property interferes with the pleasure and health of the crippled children. There is a dispute of opinion regarding the boundary line of the two properties.

HUNT MISSING BEGGAR WHO EARNED $75 A WEEK

Girl, Lured by His Income, 'Vamped' Him, Mother Believes.

Police of West Hoboken, responding to the plea of Mrs. Margaret Grantzow of No. 382 Hudson Boulevard, today began a search for her son, Andrew, a blind man. He disappeared a year ago, "vamped," his mother claims, by a girl who was attracted by the $75 a week he earned as a professional beggar.

Mrs. Grantzow, who is nearing old age, told the police that her son took excellent care of her before his disappearance. She has had a hard struggle since then, she said, and will be evicted from her two-room apartment Sept. 1, for failure to pay her rent unless he is found.

BANK TELLER SENTENCED TO TWO YEARS IN PRISON

Thieving Embezzled Funds of the Irving National.

Gerrard M. H. Thieling, teller in the Foreign Exchange Department of the Irving National Bank, pleaded guilty today before Judge Holmes, in the Federal District Court, to an indictment charging him with embezzlement of $2,107.10 funds of the teller's fund.

Thieling, 34, was sentenced to two years in the Atlanta penitentiary. The embezzlement was discovered early in the summer, and since his arrest he has been out on bail.

Kids 'Play Store' With Orange Juice As Clerk Leaves Stand, Is Charge

Several Gallons Disappear at 4th and 6th Avenue—Employee Decamped With $38, Police Say.

John S. Weber, twenty-two, of No. 183 East 115th Street, formerly in charge of the Orange Drink stand at 4th Street and Sixth Avenue, was held in $200 bail for Special Sessions when arraigned today before Magistrate Levine in West Side Court. It was alleged that on the night of Aug. 22 Weber, after sending his assistant, Harry Bloomfield, out for supper, had decamped with $38, which belonged in the juice stand cash register.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Kids 'Play Store' With Orange Juice As Clerk Leaves Stand, Is Charge

Several Gallons Disappear at 4th and 6th Avenue—Employee Decamped With $38, Police Say.

John S. Weber, twenty-two, of No. 183 East 115th Street, formerly in charge of the Orange Drink stand at 4th Street and Sixth Avenue, was held in $200 bail for Special Sessions when arraigned today before Magistrate Levine in West Side Court. It was alleged that on the night of Aug. 22 Weber, after sending his assistant, Harry Bloomfield, out for supper, had decamped with $38, which belonged in the juice stand cash register.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

DOROTHEA CARROLL IS PROMINENT IN NEWPORT'S 'WINDUP'

Several Gallons Disappear at 4th and 6th Avenue—Employee Decamped With $38, Police Say.

John S. Weber, twenty-two, of No. 183 East 115th Street, formerly in charge of the Orange Drink stand at 4th Street and Sixth Avenue, was held in $200 bail for Special Sessions when arraigned today before Magistrate Levine in West Side Court. It was alleged that on the night of Aug. 22 Weber, after sending his assistant, Harry Bloomfield, out for supper, had decamped with $38, which belonged in the juice stand cash register.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.

According to the assistant, Patrolman John Gault of the West 47th Street Station, and James Murray, chief investigator for the New York Orange Juice Company, No. 1137 Broadway, the kids had consumed several gallons of the drink which their "clerk" passed over the counter to them free of charge, and were about to leave the stand when they were arrested.

Weber was arrested when he presented himself in Lincoln Hospital, leaving a message addressed to a sweet heart who was in there.

When he abandoned the stand to a lot of youngsters, it was said, he immediately appointed one of their number official drink server and "played store" enthusiastically until the return of the assistant.